Conflict Resolution Services
Assistance provided to students for any university-related issue and to faculty and staff on matters with students.

Advice and referrals: problem solving assistance.

Coaching: skills and mentoring to help people solve conflicts on their own.

Mediation: facilitated conversation between willing parties who are in conflict.

What are some typical issues?
• Interpersonal difficulties
• Faculty/student issues
• Staff/student issues
• Roommate disputes
• Academic matters and appeals
• University Policies and Procedures

Training
Sessions can be conducted for a variety of audiences throughout campus on various topics such as conflict management, communication skills, academic integrity, and disruptive student behavior.

Student Consultation Team
Committee that is convened when an incident involving a student occurs that could cause harm to the student, other students, staff, faculty, or the community. The team recommends and initiates responses that provide for the well-being, safety, and respect of those involved.

Advising of All University Hearing Board
Provide oversight and guidance to the All University Hearing Board (AUHB). The AUHB is comprised of all seven members of the ASCSU Supreme Court, along with a representative from each of the four Greek councils within Greek Life. The AUHB is responsible for adjudicating conduct hearings for Sports Clubs and Student Organizations that have allegedly violated the student conduct code, and Greek chapters that may have violated Greek Life or University policy.

Pre-Admission Hearings
Meetings conducted with students who have had criminal convictions and/or disciplinary suspensions or expulsions in the past. The purpose is to ascertain that if the student attended Colorado State University that s/he would not be a threat to him/herself or other members of the campus community.

Academic Integrity Consultation
Services provided to faculty and students on issues involving academic misconduct.

Faculty: Consultation on the process for handling such incidents, ensuring students’ rights throughout the process, investigating cases, and conducting a disciplinary hearing if necessary.

Students: Information regarding academic misconduct, the process followed when questions of academic dishonesty arise, and options for disputing allegations of academic misconduct.

Student Conduct Hearings
Disciplinary hearings conducted with students when the Student Conduct Code has been allegedly violated. The purpose is to hold students accountable for their actions, support them as they overcome mistakes, promote character development, and help them be successful as students.

Restorative Justice Program
Innovative process that brings students who cause harm together face-to-face with those they harmed. The process fosters dialogue that results in repairing of harm, healing for those involved, and restoring relationships.

Outcomes and Education
DAY Programs: specific programs designed for students’ individual level of risk related to substance abuse. Visit www.day.colostate.edu for more information.

Party Partners: educational workshops for students that address responsible partying and local ordinances.
